Addie Morgan Sudler House
Sudlersville private

3rd quarter 19th Century

The Addie Morgan Sudler House is a good frame dwelling, Italianate in style, constructed in the third quarter of the 19th Century. The porch, with its bold frieze and half circle brackets, is unique in Queen Anne's County, as is the scored stucco foundation and flush board facade. It is a five bay structure, one room deep, with contemporary 'L' to the rear of the building. It appears on the 1877 Atlas as the residence of A. S. Gadd, operator of a canning factory adjacent the railroad.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house of Addie Morgan Sudler stands on the south side of Rt. 300, three houses from its intersection with Rt. 313. It is a five bay long two story building constructed on a brick foundation. The foundation is parged and scored to resemble stone blocks. The main facade is covered with flush un-molded ship lap, whereas the other sides are covered with lapped weatherboard. Across the three center bays of the facade is a very handsome porch with large square chamfered posts supporting a wide frieze. Between the posts are semi-circular chamfered brackets supported by ogee bracket imposts. Where the two halves meet is a turned drop finial. A balustrade extends across the front of the porch and steps are located at each end. The balustrade has very bold classical turned balusters.

The original entrance has plain trim, but bold double doors with bolection molding around the panels, the top panel being arched and there being a narrow middle panel. There is a three pane transom above the door. All of the windows have 6/6 sash and louvered blinds (aluminum replacements). A second door was added east of the central door.

7.1 DESCRIPTION

Along the facade, the cornice has closely spaced bold shaped brackets. A molding runs the length of the facade at the base of the brackets.

The west gable has no windows, but the east gable has two windows flanking its chimney. On the southeast side is a plain two bay two story wing with a lean-to beyond that.

The house was not accessible to the surveyor, but it appears to have had a central stair hall with two flanking rooms. On the south of the east room was a dining room and kitchen.
